

Sgt. Hack's Newest Promotion:

"Miss T-Town T-Shirt" Contest Taking Shape

Sgt. Hack is at it again! You have never heard of Sgt. Hack? In ordinary life, he's the Tallmadge recruiter for the U.S. Army.

When he comes out of the phone booth, he's "SuperHack", a super promoter who takes the language of today's kids and the new Army. His custom Corvette, psychedelic jeep and "Sgt. Hack Wants You" T-shirts have made the front page of leading daily newspapers in the area — and would you believe "Newsweek" (Aug. 28), the L.A. "Times", plus numerous military magazines.

Now he's making it big in the toughest newspaper of 'em all to make — "The Circle", what else?

Sgt. Hack and the rest of the U.S. Army announces a "Miss T-Town T-Shirt" contest, open to "Circle" subscribers and their nominees. All you do to enter is phone Sgt. Hack at 929-2877 with your name or your nominee's name. (Nominee must agree to enter in contest). Or you may write him at 2052 Front St., Cuyahoga Falls, O. 44221.

Prizes are:

1st prize — 12 T-shirts, inscribed "Sgt. Hack Wants You", plus a United States flag.

2nd prize — 6 T-shirts, plus a U.S. flag.

Surprise prize — to be awarded for "worst figure in a T-shirt".

Only requirement for the contest is that the entrant appear in "good shape" in a T-shirt (preferably female). Judges will be a team of U.S. Army recruiters. Entrants will be contacted directly as to judging site and date.

What better way to serve your country now than to enlist in this contest? Who knows — you may be "Miss Tallmadge T-Shirt" of 1972
